

I need to make it clear that I only used AI as a guide to understand certain concepts, not to build the entire website for me. It helped me to debug code. Whenever I got stuck in any error, I asked to get the solution. I already had the design layout pictured in my head. I just took help from AI when I needed help figuring out how to code it. For example, whenever I got stuck on small technical details like how to make an image round, how to adjust text colors, or how to import a different font, I asked for explanations. The AI acted like a personal tutor to help me learn and overcome those little roadblocks. I wrote the code and built the structure myself, but the AI helped me bridge the gap when I did not know the right syntax.
